

International Gothic Metal project is looking for people

We are looking for motivated and ambitious people who are genuinely interested in a long-term, exciting new band project that will operate online at first. The musical direction of this project can be described as "Alternative Gothic Metal," with certain influences from Industrial Metal. Think of: Rammstein, Pain and Deathstars meets Nightwish. Our goal is to record, produce, and promote several songs as a team in order to build an online fanbase before moving on to the first live shows. We're currently recruiting for Guitar, Bass, Drums and Synths. In it's current lineup, the project consists of guest and session musicians but the main goal is to find regular bandmembers that become a true part of the team. At the front of the project is an extraordinary female singer from Austria with a distinctly male(!) voice, whose presence can be polarizing. As a songwriter and producer, she has already achieved some smaller successes within the darker music scene. She is currently the main songwriter and producer for this project. We are exclusively looking for people with patience, persistence, and serious intentions. We want team players who are committed to long-term creative work and who are fully comfortable with the fact that this project will initially exist only online (releases via streaming platforms, social media, etc.). Rehearsals and live shows are the long-term goal, but before we get there, we want to grow our reach and establish a stable lineup where genuine trust can develop. Joint jam sessions will primarily take place in the form of recordings at first, so please only apply if you have recording experience and are familiar with working in a DAW (we use Reaper). We plan to write mainly English-language songs in order to position ourselves more internationally. We value atmosphere and storytelling, combining them with heavy industrial riffs and a highly gothic-influenced soundscape. If we've sparked your interest, feel free to get in touch and send us your contact details. We'll get back to you, and of course we can discuss further details together. :)
